Hydropower

Hydropower is the name given to using the ...(0)... of falling or flowing water for a range of purposes. It has been used for many ...(1)... of years. In the past, the power of flowing water was used to ...(2)... large wooden wheels called waterwheels. These were connected to large machines that produced the ...(3)... needed for making bread.

More ...(4)..., however, hydropower has been used for other things. Perhaps the most important of these is the use of hydropower to ...(5)... electricity. There are ...(6)... amounts of fossil fuels like coal and gas left on Earth. Hydropower, however, is a ...(7)... resource, meaning that it will never run out. The only disadvantage of producing electricity in this way is that hydropower ...(8)... can only be built in certain places, and there aren't many of these sites available in most countries.

Part 5

You are going to read four reviews of nature documentaries.

Choose from the sections A–D to answer the questions on the next page. The sections may be chosen more than once.

A Ko Win reviews Living Island

Living Island follows the lives of four very different families of animals in a small area in the far northwest of the Caribbean island of Cuba. One of the species it focuses on, the bee hummingbird, is the smallest bird in the world. I fell in love with this tiny creature because its shiny feathers are such beautiful colours. It made me very angry, though, to learn that there aren't many of them left because people have cut down much of their forest home. The series runs for another seven weeks – I can't wait for the next episode!

B Emily reviews Natural Wonders

Natural Wonders is made by the same company that created Earth's Amazing Islands, but is much better, in my opinion. Filmed and created over a period of two years, Natural Wonders shows a wide variety of animals that live in various locations and landscapes around the world. Many nature documentaries these days try to create stories for the animals in them, some of them funny and some sad, because they think this is what people want. Natural Wonders thankfully avoids this, and the use of music, showing exactly what the animals' lives are actually like instead.

C Ignacio reviews Nature World

Perhaps the best thing about Nature World is how many different animals, some of which I'd never even heard of, they could fit into a documentary lasting one hour. The soundtrack, provided by one of the world's greatest composers, is also excellent. There isn't enough space to describe where each of the many animals live, but my favourite part showed a creature called a snow leopard hunting on the sides of a snow-filled valley. It was amazing how easily it ran up and down the steep hills. I wish I knew which country it was filmed in – I'd really like to go there!

D Asha reviews Life on the Edge

Unlike most documentaries, which try to tell viewers about the lives of rather too many animals, Life on the Edge focuses on just one species of monkey. We get to know the personalities of each individual in the group. The scenes in which the young ones play tricks on each other made me laugh. I thought it was filmed in Indonesia, as I know this species of monkey lives there, but apparently the true location is kept a secret to protect the animals. I only wish the filmmakers had included more film of the monkeys as very tiny babies.

In which section does the writer:

- 27 describe how they felt during it?
- 28 give an opinion about the music in it?
- 29 suggest an improvement to it?
- 30 say how pleased they were by the range of animals in it?
- 31 explain exactly where in the world it was filmed?
- 32 say how long it took to make?
- 33 describe the landscape an animal lives in?
- 34 say that parts of it were funny?
- 35 explain why they like a particular animal in it so much?
- 36 compare it to another programme?

Part 6

You are going to read an article about a boy describing his neighbourhood.

Read the questions on the next page.

For each question, choose the correct answer, A, B, C or D.

My neighbourhood

By 15-year-old Danny Hallett

I love my area! There's a shopping centre, which has one or two shops I go to, and there are quite a few parks and gardens too. The way people get on with each other here and help each other out is what makes it such a special place to live. There are lots of residents from other parts of the country and from around the world too, which always gives an area a nice atmosphere.

My family's apartment isn't in a big block like many apartments: it is half of an old house that's been split into two flats. The best thing about it is the fantastic view we have of the river. There's a busy and congested main road nearby, but it's far enough away that we can hardly hear the noise of the traffic. The street our apartment is on is short and there's no way through to other parts of the city, so very few cars use it.

I've just become involved in a charity group that raises money for improvements to the local park. Last year, they managed to raise enough for a fantastic cycle track! Most parks have an area with metal or wooden things that kids can climb on. The ones in our park are really old, so we're trying to get enough money to replace them. The park looks particularly good in spring and summer when the trees and flowers are out. There's almost no litter there thanks to all the rubbish bins.

What would make it an even better place to live, though, is if it were easier to get to, so that we had more visitors from other parts of the city. There's no train station here and not many buses pass through. I'm not sure why, as I'm sure people would come from all over to visit our new cinema. There are loads of popular places to eat here, too, and the sports centre is one of the best in the city. I wouldn't want to live anywhere else!

37 What does Danny like most about his neighbourhood?

- A the wide variety of people
- B the shopping centre
- C the community spirit
- D the number of green spaces

38 Danny says that his family's apartment

- A is quite noisy.
- B is in a car-free area.
- C is in a large block.
- D is overlooking water.

39 Danny is currently involved in raising money for

- A new play equipment.
- B new trees and plants.
- C a new cycle track.
- D new litter bins.

40 One improvement Danny would like to see in his area is

- A a new sports centre.
- B better transport links.
- C more cafés and restaurants.
- D a new cinema.

41 What would Danny write in his diary?

- A I can't believe how many people come to my area to use all of the facilities here.
- B I really wish we didn't live so close to a busy road – our apartment's great apart from that.
- C There are so many shops I like in the local area, it's hard to choose one to go in first.
- D The local park looks better at certain times of year, but I'm glad it's so clean all the time.

42 What is Danny doing in this text?

- A Explaining the good and bad points of living in a certain part of a city.
- B Suggesting what other people could do to improve their own communities.
- C Encouraging other people to move to the area where he lives.
- D Describing his experiences of moving to an interesting new area.
