The Fisherman and his Sons

A long, long time ago, there was a fisherman. He had three grown-up sons, but they were all rather(0).... to the fisherman because they refused to help him catch fish. They always came up with reasons why they couldn't do it.

'Father,' said the oldest son, 'I find the water very(21).... so I cannot possibly go out with you in your boat.' His father walked to his boat, wondering why his eldest son went swimming so often if he was afraid of the water!

His second son said to him, 'Father, I am a(22).... artist, not a fisherman. How can I create my(23).... paintings if I have to spend all day on a boat?' So his father walked slowly to his boat, thinking about how....(24).... it was that he had never seen any of these amazing paintings around their home.

The next day, his youngest son told him, 'Father, I'm sure that fishing is a very(25).... job, but how will I find a wife if I am always out on the water with you? When I have found a wife, then I will help you.' The fisherman sighed and walked to his boat. Then the fisherman had a fantastic idea. He called his sons together and spoke to them all in a very(26).... way. 'Sons, when I was out in my boat yesterday, a very(27).... thing happened. I suddenly saw thousands of pieces of gold fall from the sky. The fish ate all of them as they fell into the sea, every single one.'

The sons ran quickly to their father's boat and were soon out at sea, throwing the nets into the water and pulling them in as fast as they could. The job was much less(28).... than they had imagined. In fact, it was actually rather(29)...., so they had a great time together. When they returned that evening, the boat was completely full of fine, fat fish. Their father was waiting for them, laughing. They couldn't understand why their father found it so(30).... as they hadn't found a single piece of gold. But the fisherman just smiled and said, 'No, but you have a boat full of treasure!'
